Are there any restrictions on the type of art created in the studio?

Art Hub is eager to ensure the type of art created in the studio maintains a harmonious and safe environment for all members. Artists are required to clean up after themselves and restore the studio to how it was found. Due to shopping centre policy we are unable to use naked flame or loud machinery.

How do I cancel or modify my art studio membership?

Art Hub allows cancellation of membership at any time. The membership is a monthly cost and cancellation within the month will ensure the membership finishes at the end of that month cycle.

Is there a trial period or day pass available before committing to a full membership?

Art Hub offers a free trial of two sessions in the studio (5 hours per session) for potential members to experience the facilities before committing to membership.

What are the workshop/ get togethers about?

Art Hub will hold workshops, events or networking evenings for their members every two months. These will include talks from professional artists, experts in certain fields of art or just a wine and cheese evening for members to mingle.

All Art Hub membership levels include access to these activities, as they can enhance your artistic skills and connect you with other creatives.

We are also happy to take suggestions from our members on who they would like to see at a workshop or indeed if they feel they could contribute to the membership group.

How is the studio managed, and how are member concerns addressed?

Art Hub is managed by a dedicated team of artists. Any concerns or issues can be raised via email or using the phone number provided. Knowing the communication channels and procedures can help ensure a positive and transparent experience. Management will also be present when members are able to access the studio.
